Aspirnaut Summer Research Program symposium set for July 30

The presentations will be held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in room 202 Light Hall and are open to the public.

Undergraduate participants in the 2024 Aspirnaut™ Summer Research Program will give oral presentations of their projects during a scientific symposium on Tuesday, July 30, at Vanderbilt University Medical Center.

The presentations will be held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in room 202 Light Hall and are open to the public.

Now in its 17th year, the Aspirnaut™ K-20 STEM pipeline for diversity and wellness offers a summer research program at VUMC primarily for rural and diverse high school and undergraduate students.

Since 2009, 334 students from 34 states have participated in the program, which is funded largely by donations and grants. For more information, visit <https://aspirnaut.org>.
